Arnold Rikli & Bled

Arnold Rikli is one of the greatest pioneers of natural healing, whose teachings and ideas inspired many highly respected intellectuals. He was undoubtedly one of the first providers of organized health tourism in Bled, and thus contributed greatly to the global recognition of the place.

Today, Bled strives to preserve cultural heritage by building a brand that combines Rikli's unique story with high-quality service, a holistic approach, unforgettable authentic experiences, and reconnecting with nature.

For over a decade, our team has been researching his unique life story, collecting his original books, personal items, and any other materials that could help us understand his visionary ideas and achievements.

We appreciate any information or collectible item you may have regarding his life and work. We are open to cooperation and are looking forward to hearing from you.
